

2023 Goat Class Schedule: Little Moon Acres

2023 Goat Classes

Google Meets: All classes will be meeting remotely on Google Meets. A link will be sent out five minutes before the start of class directly to your email. We decided to make the switch to Google Meets because it has been friendly in not placing a time limit on our sessions and also allows for access to a whiteboard and more enhanced features for teaching, especially with the chat box still remaining on the side so you can send in questions as they come up during class. This will allow for a better learning experience for all of us! If you have any questions about Google Meets or need a guide on navigating Google Meets, please send us an email or leave a note when you sign up for class.

Fees: Please note that the cost of classes has also gone up for 2023. It takes time for us to develop and publish our materials. We have been mindful of keeping the cost of classes affordable so everyone can access them but we want to continue to provide the best experience for our customers. Bundles/class package deals will be posted at the bottom of this document. Thank you for understanding.

Classes: Please note that due to the busy schedule of our kidding and showing season, there will be no classes in the months of March, April, June, and July. Our focus for 2023 has shifted strictly to goat classes for multiple reasons, the main one being that we have moved on from our other endeavors in farming in an effort to expand our successful goat operations. Additionally, we have also had an increased interest expressed from the public on hosting more glasses regarding advanced goat keeping.
